Information Measures and...

Phil Chodrow

MIT Human Mobility and Networks Laboratory & Operations Research Center

July 2, 2016

Evenness and Exposure

Spatial exposure refers to the extent that members of one group encounter members of another group (or their own group, in the case of spatialisolation) in their local spatial environments. Spatial evenness, or clustering, refers to the extent to which groups are similarly distributed in residential space. [?].
Evenness and exposure are distinct, but evenness implies maximal exposure.

Albuquerque: Even (relatively) external_figs/albuquerque_dot.png

Detroit: Uneven, Low Exposure

external_figs/detroit_dot.png

Philadelphia: Uneven, High Exposure

external_figs/philly_dot.png